

PRESS RELEASE

Metalite Aviation Lighting, a UK company based in Poole, Dorset, who manufacturer portable airfield lighting systems, have recently been awarded a significant contract to supply the World Food Program with 10 CALKITs (Civil Airfield Lighting KITs) to Somalia.

The CALKIT system of Portable Runway Lighting will provide the WFP with a greatly improved capability to safely land aircraft carrying important cargo of Humanitarian Aid to remote locations around the world, including troubled locations such as Somalia where they, under the banner of the UN, are carrying out important Humanitarian work.

Metalite Aviation Lighting is very proud to be supporting this important work

This contract with the World Food Program, builds on the already good relationship Metalite enjoys with the UN and adds to the significant number of systems Metalite have already supplied to the UN worldwide over previous years.

Metalite Aviation Lighting became a trading division of Aeronautical & General Instruments Limited in April 2007. Since the acquisition, Metalite has been successfully focusing on strengthening its relationship with its core customers and increasing the company's sales base.
